EXCLUSIVE NRA MEMBER OFFER

Gold Coin Survives Controversy. Drives Investor & Collector Demand.

In 1908, a gold coin sparked controversy and spread fear across our nation. So loudly was the coin condemned, people were scared to save them in their collections for fear of germs spreading from the coin's innovative recessed design.

Over a century later, that unfounded fear has resulted in the Indian Head quarter eagle ($2.50) becoming a series with relatively few examples surviving in higher grades. Their rarity, along with a historic list of unprecedented "firsts," is driving investors and collectors worldwide to add them to their portfolios and collections:

- First $2.50 to have the motto "In God We Trust"
- First U.S. coin struck with a fascinating incuse design
- First U.S. coin design that used a true Native American model
- One of the most popular and historic coins of the 20th Century

We have secured a small allotment of rare uncirculated $2.50 Indians and are making them available while our inventory remains - exclusively to NRA members. Don't be disappointed, call today.
